Introduction

In this be going to activity, students talk about future intentions by discussing ways to improve their English.

Procedure

Divide the students into groups of four.

Give each student a copy of the worksheet.

First, students brainstorm and discuss how they can improve their English skills.

Students then choose the best three ideas for each category and each student notes these down on their worksheet.

Working alone, students then choose six things that they are going to do to improve their English, choosing one idea from each category and writing a sentence with be going to, e.g. 'I'm going to speak English for one hour a day.'

Next, students pair up with someone from another group.

Students then compare their ideas with their partner and give reasons for their choices.

Finally, find out which were the most popular ideas by getting feedback from around the class and see which students intend to try the ideas they wrote down.
